

A NEWSPAPER FOR CIVIC PRIDE, THE HOME,
A GREATER TULSA

TULSA DAILY WORLD

FINAL EDITION

VOL. XIII, NO. 352.

TULSA, OKLAHOMA, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1919.

FIFTY-EIGHT PAGES
IN THREE SECTIONS

PRICE 5 CENTS.

TWENTY-ACRE OIL PLANT BURNING

WILSON ESCAPES MISHAP IN VIEW OF COAST FLEET

Presidential Launch Is In Collision but None Hurt

HOLDS NAVAL REVIEW QUARREL CULMINATES IN HUSBAND'S MURDER

From Deck of Oregon
Wilson Sees Great
Pacific Armada.

WAR PURPOSE IS NOT MET

In Address at Tacoma He Says Obligations Are Waiting.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 13.—President Wilson today reviewed the great Pacific fleet from the decks of the history-famed battleship Oregon in Elliott Bay. The review followed the president's arrival from Tacoma and also followed an incident which nearly resulted in serious consequences for the presidential party when the president's launch collided with a naval whale boat.

Arriving at the dock it was found the barge of Admiral Hugh Rodman, which was supposed to be awaiting the president, was not on hand. Commander P. W. Foutte, personal aide to Secretary of the Navy, made a hasty search for the naval launch and finally this launch went the president and Mrs. Wilson, Secretary and Mrs. Daniels, secret service men, reporters and newspaper men.

As Commander Foutte ordered the launch shoved off, the small craft passed over the port rail, was nearly under water. Starting ahead then, the craft ran bow-on into another launch, giving the presidential party a severe jolt. The president, however, said gently in the art part of the launch and smiled.

In calling the purpose for which the United States entered the war, as they were set forth and accepted by Congress in his war message, President Wilson told the people of Washington today that the issue squarely facing the country in the treaty debate was whether that peace should be carried through or abandoned.

In the first day of his stay of more than a week on the Pacific coast, Mr. Wilson spoke during the morning at Tacoma and then came to Seattle in time to review the Pacific fleet in the afternoon and address a meeting at the armory in the evening.

He was cheered by crowds that thronged every point of venue to get a glimpse of him. He will rest tomorrow at Seattle hotel.

Repeats Arguments.

Repeating many of the arguments he had made previously against qualification of the treaty by reservations of amendments, the president again appealed to republicans of the country to "forget that there is an election in 1920." He asserted his intention to read the "rat act" to any one who let political discussions distract his course in relation to the treaty.

The downtown section was crowded to its capacity when Mr. Wilson's train arrived and along the line or a two-mile automobile run through the city there was roar of cheering. The police had string ropes to keep the spectators on the sidewalk, but the crowds broke through and shouting men followed the president as far as where.

At a public dinner which he attended before going in the area, Mr. Wilson said he had been impressed by the uniformity of opinion among the people from ocean to ocean.

"There is no essential division," he said, "in the thought or purpose of the American people. No amount of debate will set them off their balance."

Looks to U. S.

All the world was looking to the United States to put the world affairs on a settled basis," he said, adding that the world would not be disappointed.

At the arena, which seats 6,200, there were a few empty seats when the president began speaking, but many were attending. When Mr. Wilson entered the arena in silence and observed for more than a minute, and when he was introduced by Mayor Fitzgerald there was a longer demonstration.

STRIKE AT SHAWNEE ENDED.

The Maxwell Barber Shop
IS NOW OPEN
We solicit your Patronage
Just Across From The Hotel Tulsa.

Maintaining 7 Chairs

THE WEATHER

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 13.—Maximum temperature 83; south wind, clear. OKLAHOMA CITY, same. Increasing cloudiness. Monday probably rainy.

LOUISIANA. Sunday rain in east and south portion, partly cloudy in north and west portions; strong easterly winds to 30 miles per hour on the east; Monday cloudy with rain.

ARKANSAS. Sunday and Monday generally rainy. Sunday, partly cloudy in north; rain in south portion; strong easterly to northerly winds in southwest portion; probably gales on coast; Monday probably rainy.

MISSOURI. Sunday and Monday partly cloudy; except probably rains in north portion; Monday.

STORM REACHES ALONG SOUTHERN COAST TO TEXAS

Entire Stretch Now Within Path of Hurricane

THE AREA IS 500 MILES

A Warning Is Hoisted at Brownsville; Calculations Are Upset.

TRAIN SERVICE IS CUT OFF

Louisville and Nashville
Suspends All Service to the Gulf.

Neighbors Say Couple Had Separated Temporarily Following Do- mestic Troubles

"I am going to murder you," were the last words of Dave Hines, 29, to his wife, Mrs. Hines, 28, yesterday morning. The couple, who have been married 10 years, live in a room occupied by Mrs. Hines in the rear of the house. The couple had been separated for three months. The husband, a revenue agent, had struck man square in the mouth and entered the brain. Hines turned and ran downstairs falling in the front yard. An attempt was made to save his life but he died while being taken to a hospital.

It is intimated by friends and acquaintances of the Hines that a four-rounder was affixed to the husband's abdomen. It was supposed to be for the husband's infidelity. The Hines' friends say he complained that his wife constantly associated with other men while he, it is said, the wife also complained that her husband favored other women. It is said that Mrs. Hines has been married three times but that she was not divorced from Hines. They had lived together for months.

Mrs. Hines' friends often say that her husband favored other women and it is known that she has used police aid for his apprehension. Neighbors of the Hines say there was a mutual inclination, to a certain degree, between Hines and another woman in the house. Officers say she was holding Hines' hand in her lap when they arrived and that the mother-in-law was with her.

Coupled with the admission by hurricane experts that the storm, apparently one of the greatest in area in weather bureau history, came an order tonight to extend storm warnings from Galveston and Brownsville, Texas, to Galveston and Brownsville, Texas. Gale force winds and rising tides were forecast.

Upsets Calculations.

Rising barometers at various western gulf coast cities earlier today seemed to indicate the storm would not make its presence felt here but the hurricane, according to a weather bureau expert, apparently was upsetting calculations based on previous readings as well as ordinary observations. Port Arthur, for instance, was pointed out, showed a barometer reading early tonight of 29.68 against 29.74 24 hours ago, when it was thought probable that the storm might strike that vicinity.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the

patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.

The road leading from the mainland to Galveston, bringing him home, lie in sight of New York harbor, has shown what the nation thinks of the man who led the United States forces overseas. Thousands of ocean and river craft welcomed a welcome to him as he sailed up the creek. Airplanes swooped over the liner and over the patrol boat which carried him to the dock. Great crowds greeted him at the pier and along the streets of Galveston.